APPROACHES TO COMMON CONDITIONS

Illness	Conventional Medicine	Homeopathic Medicine
Infections (acute and chronic recurring) including: All Known Bacterial Bronchitis Ear Eye Influenza Lyme Disease Pneumonia Sinus Step and Staph Throat Urinary Vaginitis and All Know Viral OTHER CHRONIC CONDITIONS Arthritis Cancer/Diabetes Migraines Psoriasis/Eczema	Relies on the use of antibiotics[i] repeatedly until condition subsides. Defines pathogenic bacteria or germ as the cause for disease. Antibiotic medications may push illness deeper into the body, sending out another red flag (illness) in a different system of the body where there is still systemic imbalance or weakness. (e.g. 1st ear infections then after antibiotics chronic asthma may start.) Some pathogenic strains have mutated into antibiotic resistance.	Looks outside the conventional paradigm of germ theory for the origin of disease [ii]* (e.g., reaction from food allergies, toxins, medication, vaccines, mental or emotional trauma, environmental or genetic factors.) The aim is to clear stressors and improve vital force by giving the body what it needs to avoid recurrence. Matches your specific symptoms to an exact remedy picture. Presence of disease is usually a function of stress-induced low immunity.
Autism ADD/ADHD/ Anxiety Depression Delusions Core Negative Beliefs Panic attacks OCD Irrational Fear Hyperactivity Behavioral Problems Bi-polar Learning Disabilities PTSD	Mainstream psychiatric treatment (as opposed to psychological therapeutics) primarily seeks to control the symptoms and behavior with long-term prescription medications for years or decades. Medications can suppress outward symptoms. Side effects of medication are common. Patient often requires long term testing and evaluation. Offers expensive and extensive therapies.	Looks at a person's history and totality of symptoms: trauma, suppressed anger, grief, fear, emotional stressors, vaccine and medication history, genetic and environmental factors. Is known to help reverse the above causative factors so the person can be free of most symptoms.[iv] Matches an individual's exact symptoms to a specific remedy to restore a balanced state of wellbeing. No side effects [iii].
